

RB, the Mobel Linea series that generates and reconfigures workspaces

Promotes interaction within open space work environments

It allows combining privacy and communication in the same space

The furniture brand Mobel Linea launches RB, a series of modular screens that favour the organization and definition of workspaces, adapting to the challenges of everyday life.

Designed by Alegre Design, in collaboration with the Mobel Linea's team, RB represents a new scenario in the conceptualization of the open space model and an evolution of work environments whose methodologies value well-being, communication and collaboration under the umbrella of new technologies.

RB is presented as a solution for organizing and generating environments, capable of creating balance between different spaces, with a greater or lesser level of privacy.

The partitions are made up of a frameless aluminium structure covered on both sides with melamine, upholstered or acoustic panels. A single profile creates the frame of the partition uniting technical and aesthetic aspects.

With 6 partition heights and 4 different widths, in addition to a Fence system, RB adapts to the needs of each office to respect social distance, regulate noise levels, and guarantee access to electricity and data.

The office-projects equipped with the RB program create unique universes modelled from the intersection of two concepts: the company's work culture and the people's work habit.

The entire system is tailored to the space, so that it respects the architecture of the building, providing divider screens to the workplace.
